in the United States. As the form with respect to each person names the agency with which that person is connected, you may care to send a representative to the Department to examine this file and to compile from it a list of British agencies which have officials in the United States.

As you know, the foreign Agents Registration Act of June 8, 1938, as amended, was administered by the Department of State until June 1, 1942, when, in accordance with Executive Order No. 9176 of May 29, 1942, the administration of the act was transferred to the Department of Justice. The Department of Justice may, therefore, be in a position to furnish you with a more recent list of foreign agents who have registered with this Government than that enclosed herewith.
